Documentary

In Praise of Life

70 mins | 2025 | Iran

Mohammad Ehsai, Aydin Aghdashloo, and Abbas Kiarostami are three Iranian artists with global recognition who studied painting together at the Faculty of Fine Arts at the University of Tehran.

To commemorate the 70th birthday of these three artists in 2010, I made a documentary titled "In Praise of 70," which was showcased that same year alongside an exhibition of their works at the House of Artists in Iran.

I was planning to make "In Praise of 80 Years" ten years later, but the death of Abbas Kiarostami and the epidemic of Corona disease made the project impossible.

In 2023, we began the documentary "In Praise of Life," featuring conversations with Mohammad Ehsai and Aydin Aghdashloo, along with remaining footage from interviews with Abbas Kiarostami and excerpts from his films. Listening to the thoughts of these three artists on the passage of time from childhood to now, fate, culture and art, tradition and modernity side by side is truly captivating.

This documentary offers a glimpse into the thinking of contemporary Iranian artists.

No One Sleeps

78 mins | 2024 | Iran

Negar SamakNejad, A 46-year-old university lecturer, holding a PhD in cognitive science and a passionate running coach, aims for a remarkable goal.

Negar intends to become the first Iranian woman to continuously climb Mount Damavand from all four fronts to the peak. Standing at an impressive 5,609 meters, Mount Damavand is both the highest peak in Iran and the third-highest volcano in the Eastern Hemisphere.

This compelling documentary delves into the inspiring journey of an Iranian woman as she chases her lifelong dream, She succeeds eventually but the taste of success has a bitter side, being expelled from the university. The university authorities never name the real reason for her expulsion. Their rotten minds could not stand a woman lecturer who became a public figure and role model for thousands of Iranian women after this movie was shot.

Facing The Rook

80 mins | 2024 | Iran

"Facing the Rook" is a film about the contemporary Iranian artist, Ali Akbar Sadeghi. It is a free interpretation of his dreams and poems. The story revolves around the artist's latest piece; an artwork with a clear violent expression that is different from his other pieces. Given the artist's past struggles with depression, the family is concerned about his emotional state and his sons decide to hire a team of psychoanalysts. The process sparks an idea in their minds to make a film about their father...

The Black Bubble

15 mins | 2024 | Iran

We are the saddest women in history. We've been repeated each time in a different place. Once in Mauthausen, once in Hiroshima. Once in Vietnam, once in Halabja. And another time in the heart of Beirut and today in Tehran.

We are mothers and sisters and daughters and brothers and spouses, we each have a role in life. Each day we mourn someone. And sometimes we get killed. Don't mourn us as we will be here forever. We, mourning women, seeking justice, will rise every day. We will lament the separation of a child.

Hali Band

4 Seasons (13x12mins)
2025 | Iran

Hali Band is the name of a street music band playing on the sidewalks of a town in Europe. Their art of performance can not be considered as professional as they definitely lack the main factors of success in the field of music. The members of the band have neither charming appearances nor special talent or skill in playing music. But the story of Hali Band is not about their music, it's about the extraordinary things that happen in their everyday life. Whether it's an on the run murderer appearing in front of their caravan door or that they have been the witness of the biggest fraud in town...
